Currency Conundrum

- Unlike in Oct 23, the UST and INDOGB yields were stable despite the current IDR weakness while DXY strengthening moderated.
- BI now has a wider array of intervention tools underpinned by improving liquidity in the system and rising Forex Reserves.
- Our study reveals a fundamental IDR range of IDR15,432 15,626 per USD, implying the recent weakness overshot on the upside.

Rising Currency Risk. We observed a distinctive pattern last week as the IDR weakened to a level last seen in Oct 23 during a period of heightened global volatility. Nonetheless, the recent weakness lacked negative drivers, as was the case in October. During that period, the 10-year UST approached 5% (versus the current 4%), and the DXY hovered around 106-107 (versus 103 in the current period). Our study during that time led to a worst-case scenario of a 7.5% 10-year INDOGB yield and IDR16,032/USD for the USD/IDR exchange rate, which was then responded to by a 25bps rate hike by Bank Indonesia.

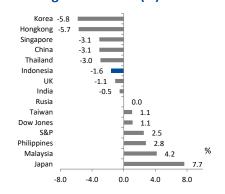

In the current period of IDR depreciation, the yields on the UST and INDOGB do not seem to exhibit signs of rising volatility. The yield on the 10-year INDOGB only moved within a mere 5bps range last week, a significant contrast to the 40bps weekly increase in mid-October. Furthermore, the Dollar Index (DXY) only rose 2 points YTD and continued to remain stable despite the recent release of stronger 4Q23 US GDP growth of 3.3%, surpassing the consensus of 2% but still indicating a slowdown from the previous quarter. Also, the release of Core PCE, the Fed's primary inflation gauge, which fell to 2.9% in Dec 2023 from Nov's 3.2% will lead to a more stable DXY trend. The last time the Core PCE was below 3% was back in March 2021.

On the domestic front, the escalation of geopolitical tensions in the Red Sea (pls refer to our report "Permeating Risk Landscape" – 22 Jan 2024) led to an increase in energy prices. Typically, this prompts a surge in oil imports, thereby increasing the demand for USD. WTI prices have risen by 11.4% year-to-date, reaching USD78 per barrel. Increased imports activity could also potentially contribute to a deterioration in the trade surplus, serving as another negative catalyst for the IDR.

Wider array of intervention tools. We perceive the current episode of IDR weakness as more transient, mainly driven by the market's repricing of FFR higher-for-longer conditions. In our view, BI currently possesses an enhanced arsenal of intervention tools to stabilize the IDR. Back in Oct 23, BI faced constraints with limited tools due to a moderation in the Forex Reserves, lower system liquidity restricting BI's contraction policies, and significant outflows in the bond market. Consequently, BI opted to raise rates to send a strong signal to the market regarding its commitment toward supporting the IDR. Encouragingly, the fundamentals have largely improved recently, with higher FX Reserves attributable to recent global bonds issuance, foreign loans, and portfolio inflows in 4Q23. Domestic forex liquidity is also higher, as evidenced by a lower TD Forex Rate. As such, BI will be able to deploy both contractionary policies and direct IDR intervention. On the former, we note a persistent increase in the outstanding Open Monetary Operations conducted by BI, especially on SRBI, which saw weekly average bids of IDR35tn in Jan 2024 (compared to IDR20tn in Dec 2023). Net foreign inflows to SRBI have reached IDR18.9tn year-to-date, surpassing the combined total of foreign inflows to bonds (+IDR7.11tn) and equities (+IDR7.35tn).

Equity Strategy

Re-emerging risk factors may warrant a more conservative positioning in Feb24

- Reversal in foreign flows over recent weeks indicate foreign investors may start to price in re-emerging risk factors
- We think large banks' 4Q23 earnings may dictate ST market direction, as domestic funds are OW and valuation are at premium
- We see Telcos (ISAT, EXCL) and middle-high retailers as sectors with potential growth surprise, reasonable valuation and are less crowded

Earnings growth driver remains a key question

A key concern shared by domestic funds is the lack of a visible driver of JCI earnings growth for FY24. On the positive note, confirmation of continuation of social aid program (BLT, rice aid, food security assistance) and govt's election spending (budget of Rp7tr) shall support purchasing power of the low-end segment in Jan-Feb24 and bodes well with our sector preference on Consumer Staples (ICBP, MYOR). Nonetheless, the question remains on the lack of visible growth driver for the general middle-income.

Re-emerging risk factors may have driven flow reversal

We think JCI and EM's foreign fund flow reversal in recent weeks may partly be explained by the unexpected outperformance in the US equity market YTD (SPX +3.3% vs. EEM -2.5%) and positive surprises in US economic data points. Furthermore, we think the market is starting to gradually factor in re-emerging risk factors for EM, with crude oil price rising back to above US$80/t. On the election front, investors seem to expect a one-round election to be the best scenario for the market, but this remains uncertain at this stage.

A more conservative positioning may be warranted

While we maintain our positive view on JCI (FY24-end target of 7,830), we think ST outlook may warrant a more conservative positioning. Amid domestic funds' current OW in big-cap banks (+380bps OW in Dec23) and the big banks' premium valuation, we think the sector's 4Q23 earnings may influence ST market direction, especially if we see earnings weakness. Our bank analyst, Victor Stefano, forecast banks earnings to temporarily slowdown to 9% in FY24 (below consensus' 11-12%) and has recently lowered earnings estimates of BBNI and BBCA following the 4Q23 results.

BRIDS Equity Research key views in Jan24:

- Telco: possible catalysts from further industry consolidation
 We continue to like Telco sector, particularly ISAT (Buy, TP Rp11,100) on the visible earnings growth driver and also like EXCL (Buy, TP Rp3,000) on potential FMC strategy acceleration and merger.
- Retailers: a less crowded space with a potential growth surprise
 The retailers continues to offer proxy for the more resilient middle-high income segment, which has continued to play out well in selected stocks (e.g., ACES SSSG beat at 8.1% in FY23 and positive Jan24 traffic).
- ASII: re-initiated with Hold rating and TP of Rp5,700. Longer-term, we see ASII's ICE 4W product competitiveness to remain intact, but we see ASII valuation to remain under pressure in ST as newsflows that may continue to skew in support of EV.

Indian Government Anticipates a 7% Growth Rate

The Indian government predicts a growth rate of 7% for the upcoming fiscal year (Apr24 to March 2025), citing the robust performance of the financial sector and ongoing structural reforms. This projection surpasses the current consensus of 6.3%, positioning India as one of the fastest-growing economies globally. The expected growth for the ongoing fiscal year is 7.3%. The finance minister expresses optimism in India's potential to double its economy by 2030. (Bloomberg)

Indonesian Government is Set to Distribute Direct Cash Assistance of Rp600,000 to 18.8mn Families

The government is set to distribute a Direct Cash Assistance (BLT) of Rp600,000 to 18.8mn families, marking the ongoing provision of aid previously known as BLT El Nino, now renamed BLT for Food Risk Mitigation. The Rp600,000 cash assistance encompasses a three-month support program, equivalent to Rp200,000/ month, spanning from January to March. The distribution is scheduled to commence in February. (CNBC Indonesia)

Indonesia Government Targets Inflation in the range of 2.5% ±1% until 2027

The government is targeting inflation in the range of $2.5 \pm 1\%$ in 2024-2027. Efforts to achieve the inflation target in this range will be carried out through coordination between fiscal and monetary policies. In pursuit of this objective, the government endeavors to maintain volatile food inflation below 5%. (Investor Daily)

Consumer: Government Discusses Sugar Levels Subject to MBDK Tax

The government, through the Directorate General of Customs and Excise, has proposed categorizing excise duty on packaged sweetened beverages in Indonesia based on the amount of sugar or sweeteners they contain. This is consistent with research conducted by the American Heart Association (AHA), which advocated the same idea. There are at least three categories of MBDK that will be imposed: 1) MBDK containing more than 6g of sugar per 100ml; 2) MBDK containing natural sweeteners at any level; and 3) MBDK containing artificial sweeteners at any level. However, the limit value for sugar content can still be determined through an agreement between the Ministry of Finance and the relevant K/L. (Kontan)

Consumer: HET Rice and Sugar Reference Prices to be Re-Evaluated

The Presidential Staff Office (KSP) opened the option to adjust the Highest Retail Price (HET) of rice due to rice prices that are still perched at a high level. Based on data from the Food Price Panel of the National Food Agency (Bapanas), as of January 29, 2024, the national average price of medium rice is Rp13,500/kg, an increase of 14.44% yoy. The price is above the highest national average price of medium rice last year which occurred in October, which was Rp13,210/kg. In addition to rice, KSP also proposed the need to review the reference sales price (HAP) of granulated sugar at the consumer level. The national average price of granulated sugar has also been high for a long time and tends to rise, so it may also need to be adjusted for HAP. (Kompas)

Tech: Kominfo Intends for a Minimum Internet Speed Of 100 Mbps

The Minister of Communication and Information plans to set a minimum fixed broadband internet speed in Indonesia of at least 100Mbps. The APJII (Indonesian Internet Service Providers Association) survey found that internet connections were just accessible for Indonesian people in a range of Rp100,000—300,000 per month, or 30Mbps or less. According to APJII, expanding it to 100Mbps will result in higher costs, so an assessment is required before implementing this policy. (Kontan)

BBCA Partners with Jamkrindo and Targets 11% KUR Growth

BBCA cooperates with Jamkrindo in KUR distribution and guarantee. In 2023 BBCA managed to record an increase in KUR distribution of up to 24% yoy, with KUR NPLs relatively stable at 0.7%. This will continue to be improved in line with BCA's KUR realization target in 2024 of 11%. With this cooperation, Jamkrindo guarantees the risk of bad debts for the distribution of small KUR or micro-KUR. BBCA offers a ceiling of up to Rp500mn with competitive interest rates, starting from 6% effective per year. This program also offers other benefits such as free administration and provision fees. (Investor Daily)

In other news, motor vehicle loans have supported the growth of banking consumer credit throughout 2023. The condition of vehicle credit is projected to continue accelerating in 2024. BBCA also experienced rapid growth in vehicle loans in 2023. BCA noted that outstanding vehicle loans rose 20.8% yoy to reach Rp56.tr as of Dec23. According to BBCA, the rapid demand for credit was due to the fact that vehicle supply was hampered in previous years. Meanwhile, in 2023, vehicle supply will recover. (Kontan)
